“ My heart hasn't stopped breaking for the loss of my sweet Amber. The best memory was the day she was born and the next was when she was standing in the play pen yelling deb-die cause she couldn't say Debbie. I rocked her changed her walked her stayed up all night while she had colic.. My god how can this be true!!! Angel Bates I love you and wish I could carry all your pain and heartache no mother should ever have to suffer such grief!!! I can't see how someone could take 3 kids from there family.. I miss her so much!!

An I promise you will have your justice .. don't let the boys cause too much trouble up there ;) I love you guys

“ So many memories with Amber that will only talk about one. Amber wanted a dress for her prom. The dresses were all so expensive. I stopped by a store at the South Side Mall and saw a lot of discounted prom dresses. I saw one black dress and knew it would be perfect for her. Her aunt Thresa told me to get her and take her back to the store and see which one she wanted. She saw that black dress and said she loved it. It was originally about $300 but I got it for $95. It was the best $95 I could have ever spent. She hugged me so many times. She was so beautiful in that dress. I'm so glad that I was able to give happiness to her.
