“ i have missed you for a while now, and now i will have to miss you for forever because there wont be another time to come visit you i never got to come and see u at the nursing home because of work and because of not having a ride, but i kept saying id eventually be ale to but now that will never happen, I just wish this world was different, i wish things werent always so difficult, you lived a hard life and it still never waivered you from being the angel that you now really truly ARE, you have always been kind and giving and loving and you always had a smile on your face when wed come in to see u at the house you were always excited when we would come in with the kids at halloween to show you their costumes, You never let the struggles that this world threw at you get you down, im lucky to have been your granddaughter, i was blessed with 2 wonderful grandmas who shared their light with me and gave me hope that the world wasnt always full of bad people, that good ones still existed, and now i feel like everything is just so dark, and things keep getting worse, I feel that once all these beautiful angels are taken from this earth that that will be the day it ceases to exist, we are just waiting for that last angel to gain their forever wings and once that occurs we will all have to fight for our lives till the good lord comes back and takes the rest of us who believeth in Him. WHen that day comes i will finally get to see you again and all will be well, but till then mamaw I love you and i do miss you i pray that you RIP and i pra for all of us still stuck in this horrid place, without your light, and guidance, life will never be the same, but i also feel like we will be okay, we are a tough bunch, and we dont back down from a challenge so we will do what it is we are destined to do that keeps us stuck here on this earth and wait our turn, At least we know she can see now, she isnt hurting she isnt worrying she isnt alone she isnt sick i mean she is in heaven and thats a fact and that comforts me enough to keep going regardless of the hurt, i now know for a fact that you are safe in teh arms of the Lord, We LOVE you MAMAW NOE.
