“ I sit here and think about the great laughs, and memories we made together in the short years we've known each other. We've had our ups and downs, agreements and disagreements but most of all, I'm a proud son to have called you my father, my dad. I've missed you every day since the last time I've seen you and now, the pain and heartache sets in something fierce. I love you dad, and I'll see you when I get there. Now you can catch those big fish we've always talked about. Xoxoxo
