Mary and I were in first grade together & all through high school. She was a sweet and gentle soul. Always kind and quiet. Although I have not seen her since graduation I have respect for the kind of person she was.

roses for a rose. one more beautiful will never be found. I love you kitty and you are not gone from us just away waiting for us. I know you had your bad days like the rest of us but I can say I knew you from birth , my oldest cousin, and I never saw you have a really bad day cause you had that gift of smiling and giving it all to God. I never knew you to bear a grudge or make anyones day bad because you may be having one. your door was always open to all and your welcome matt out and you were just as warm and loving to the least of people as you were to the richest and finest. you just loved life and people and it was impossible to feel bad around you. I always loved laying out in the sun with you and peanut as a small girl and getting rides to the school dances and ball games as a teen and being so proud of you cause you had a desk job and a car and everyone loved and respected you. I have always been so proud that you were my cousin. mommy just loved looking out and seeing you come up the holler to see her. you could just see her heart swell that you chose her to come sit a spell on the porch swing and talk about everything from kids to nail polish. you always wore the prettiest shades. I always looked forward to walking the kids to the bus stop and remember me and you would still be standing there talking long after everyone else had went back home and then you'd go in at your moms for coffee and I'd walk up the holler thinking how smart you were about things of life. you taught me more than you ever knew and I can't wait to see you again. you were and are awesome... daughter ,wife, mother, cousin, aunt and friend. no one compares to you. I'm heartbroke for all us you leave right now but oh, so happy you are home with Jesus and the rest of the family gone on. I can just see you now talking to them all. toe stands out to me most of all. I can just see you two hugging and enjoying each others company again just like mommy and joe. I love you always and cherish every memory. tell everyone hello for me...okay?? xoxooxox one more thing you can always tell a good person when every kid in the neighborhood is at their house and that was you. don't know how you managed them all but you did and loved everyone of them. you are one special lady.. proverbs chapter 13 you made it look easy cuz!!
